CHEF'S NOTES

This recipe is a great example of using a recipe as a guide or a template but customizing with ingredients that you have on hand or like best. We use whole wheat spaghetti noodles, but you can also use rice or soba noodles. Tofu would be a great vegetarian substitute for the chicken and you can add any of your favorite vegetables.

For a nut-free version, substitute sunflower seed butter for the peanut butter and sesame seeds for the chopped peanuts.

Try this recipe served with our Sesame Ginger Broccoli on the side or mixed in for even more color, fiber, and flavor!

DIRECTIONS

1. Gather all necessary equipment and ingredients. Prepare all ingredients as described above.
2. Bring a large saucepot of water to a boil over high heat. Once boiling, add the spaghetti and in the last minute of cooking the spaghetti, add the edamame, cooking the pasta for a total time of about 7-8 minutes. Drain the pot and rinse under cold water. Pour the rinsed noodles and edamame back into the pot and set aside away from heat to allow the noodles to further cool down.
3. Heat a medium sauté pan over medium heat. Once hot, add the oil and then the chicken pieces in an even layer. Cook until lightly browned on the first side, about 2 minutes, then use tongs to flip each piece to finish cooking, about 2 more minutes or until the internal temperature reaches 165°F.

- Add the shredded carrot to the pan and toss. Let the carrot to soften, about 1 additional minute. Remove from heat and transfer the cooked chicken and carrot to the pot of noodles.
- Meanwhile, prepare the sauce by adding all sauce ingredients into in a medium blender cup, and blend until smooth and creamy, about 1 minute. Add more water as needed to reach a pourable consistency
- Pour the sauce over the noodle and chicken mixture and stir to coat evenly (off the heat). Top with the sliced green onion and chopped peanuts and serve at room temperature or cold.
